

STREAMLINED FIELD ISOLATION PROCESS

Abstract of the Invention

A field isolation process performed on a silicon wafer is carried out by high pressure oxidation. Using oxygen rather than water vapor as the oxidant substantially eliminates nitride inclusions via the Kooi effect. Preferred high pressure field oxidation processes simplify all CMOS flows by eliminating the need for sacrificial oxide growth and removal steps.

10

DLA-1244:lv/lc,ccl
071395